Immersion Program

CLI is a center for Chinese language and cultural studies where students from around the world experience China and gain an invaluable advantage in our ever-globalizing world. As adequate preparation is the first step toward making the most of your experience, we've developed the following packet to jumpstart the process. As always, please feel free to contact us anytime.

UTILIZING CLI'S LANGUAGE ENVIRONMENT

- 1. Make sure you know all 58 pinyin sounds: Do not undervalue the importance of pinyin (拼音). Once you can make all of the sounds, you can essentially say any word in Chinese. Concentrate on hearing and saying the slight variations between sounds. Tones are very important, but clear pronunciation of the pinyin sounds is still the most essential building block of spoken Mandarin.
- 2. Speak (and think in) Chinese, regardless of your Chinese level: Whether you are an absolute beginner or the world's greatest Mandarin speaker, you can always advance your skills by practicing the language at every turn. Take the initiative to speak with those around you every day. Chat with local shop-owners. Ask the police questions. Talk to waiters and waitresses during meals. These people are your teachers too. When it comes to spoken Chinese, there is no better way to improve than to simply speak.
- 3. Keep CLI informed: All of CLI's team members—teachers, directors and tour guides alike—are here because we love the Chinese language, love sharing it, and love that you're interested. Let us know if you don't understand something or have a specific question. Be an active learner. Don't forget that a student's dedication and persistence is the ultimate factor that leads to success when learning a foreign language.
- 4. Attitude is everything: Maintain a relentless attitude in your approach to mastering the Chinese language. If you feel you're hitting a plateau, push even harder. Many non-native speakers have reached a high level of proficiency in the Chinese language, and with the right combination of language environment, determination and attitude, you can too.

WHAT YOU'LL WANT/NEED

Fall

The months from September to December are Guilin's most mild. Expect a lot of sunshine, moderate temperatures, and limited rain.

- ❖ Autumn clothing: Even though Guilin's latitude (25°N) is just north of the Tropic of Cancer, it can still get quite chilly during autumn. You should pack a light jacket and additional layers. Most days will be warm, but temperatures steadily decrease as November and December approach.

Winter

Guilin winters can often be quite cold. Because the city is in a mountainous region, its southern latitude does not guard it from chilly temperatures. Be prepared to have the following items:

- ❖ Winter clothing: Thick winter coat, long underwear tops and bottoms, winter hat, scarf, gloves, and winter socks. Many locations in Guilin still do not have centralized indoor heating.

Pre-Departure Packet

Immersion Program

Spring

Spring brings Guilin's rainiest weather, in particular from early March to late April. The following items can all be purchased in Guilin:

- ❖ Umbrella: This is a must. Nearly every corner store in town sells umbrellas for 2-10 USD depending on quality, but you may want to bring your own from home.
- ❖ Rain boots: Rain boots are a great way to go. They will keep your feet, socks, and the bottom of your pants dry all spring.
- ❖ Raincoat: A variety can be bought in Guilin.

Summer

During the Guilin summer, temperatures usually stay in the 80s (low-mid 30s Celsius) and peak in the high 90's (high 30's Celsius). Be sure to have the following items:

- ❖ Sunscreen lotion: If you have sensitive skin you may want to use sunscreen. The summer sun is high. Sunscreen is very difficult to find in Guilin.
- ❖ Sunglasses: Being even in latitude with the furthest point south in the USA, the sun is very powerful in Guilin.
- ❖ Bathing suit: There's a pool near GXNU where you can swim for 2 USD per day. Guilin's Li River and Yangshuo's Yu Long River are also popular swimming destinations during the summer.
- ❖ Breathable summer clothes: Guilin gets hot in the summer, so be sure to plan accordingly!

Visit the following site for Guilin climate information: www.travelchinaguide.com/climate/guilin.htm

Money

The simplest and safest method to obtain Chinese currency (RMB) while in China is by using an ATM card (also referred to as a debit card) from a major international bank. The best ATMs to use are those of Bank of China, Industrial and Commercial Bank of China (ICBC), and China Construction Bank. Such ATMs are conveniently located throughout all major Chinese cities, including Guilin.

Chinese ATM machines automatically convert funds into RMB. In other words, the funds in your bank account should not be converted from your home country's currency to RMB in advance. The currency conversion will take place automatically upon withdrawal from the Chinese ATM. Some Western banks charge a special fee for international ATM transactions. This fee usually does not exceed 5 USD.

If you haven't already, please notify your bank that you will use an ATM card during your CLI program dates. Please do the same if you plan on also carrying a credit card (although most locations in Guilin do not accept foreign credit cards). For security purposes, bank and credit card companies may freeze the credit card and/or ATM card if used in China without first receiving notification.

International Medical and Travel Insurance

If your current insurance carrier does not already provide international medical and travel coverage, you may want to secure additional insurance. Many CLI students have purchased insurance through iNext (www.inext.com), a student travel insurance provider. Please note that arranging international medical and travel insurance is optional.

General

Evening Wear

- ❖ The whole spectrum: Although Guilin's atmosphere is very casual, Chinese people also like to dress up when going out on the town. A suit or dress can be custom made for around 100 USD. Bring fashion magazines, pictures, or the actual item with you if you want something replicated.

Electronics

- ❖ Laptop computer: If you do not want to bring a computer, there are numerous 24-hour Internet bars all throughout Guilin and a computer-lab at GXNU. All CLI housing options have WiFi Internet access, and many cafés have wireless as well.
- ❖ Converter: Electricity in China is 220V while in the US it is only 110V. Most computers, iPods, and chargers have built-in converters on their power adapters. Yet electric shavers and hair dryers often do not. Check the voltage range before coming – some electronics range from 110-240V. A converter can also be bought in Guilin. Lastly, not all plugs are compatible with Chinese outlets, so this should be taken into consideration as well.

Miscellaneous (**starred items are difficult to find in Guilin*)

- ❖ Gifts for newfound friends*: You are sure to make many new friends while in China, and in keeping with Chinese custom, you may want to offer a very simple gift upon departure, such as a t-shirt, baseball cap, or other small token of appreciation.
- ❖ Note cards (flash cards)*: Surprisingly, this is one of the few things that you cannot find in Guilin. Bring your own or use one of the many great online services for compiling note cards, such as www.nciku.com.
- ❖ Dental floss*: It can be difficult to find dental floss in China, but it is available in select supermarkets.
- ❖ Prescription medicine*: If you take prescription drugs, be sure to bring enough to last the duration of your stay.
- ❖ Feminine products*: Pads are available, but tampons are near impossible to find.
- ❖ Lonely Planet travel book: A Lonely Planet guide book is excellent to have on hand while traveling in the PRC. CLI's library includes several.

Immersion Program

- ❖ Books*: There are countless books in Chinese in Guilin, but few in English. If you would like to enjoy recreational reading, you may want to bring your own books. You can also download any books from Amazon.com. CLI also has a quickly growing library from which you can borrow books.
- ❖ Organic or natural products: Unfortunately there are few all-natural products in Guilin, and surprisingly enough, the one shopping market in Guilin that does have an organics section is Walmart.
- ❖ All-terrain shoes: These are easy to find in Guilin (as long as your shoe size is under 44 on the international scale).
- ❖ Hand soap and toilet paper: Chinese toilets usually have neither soap nor toilet paper, so always carry your own with you when you go out. Little tissue packets are for sale everywhere and you can buy hand-sanitizers at all grocery stores.
- ❖ Cell phone for daily use in China: Your cell phone from home most likely won't work in China. Cell phones in China work on a prepaid system. An average phone will cost 50 USD and most students will use less than 20 USD a month in service. CLI will provide you with a temporary cell phone as soon as you arrive in Guilin, but you are expected to arrange your own during your first week in Guilin.
- ❖ VPN to access the entire Internet: See “The Great Firewall” section below in “What to Expect.”
- ❖ International phone cards: Although international phone cards can be purchased in Guilin, it's most convenient and inexpensive to just use Skype (www.skype.com). We recommend you set up an account now if you have not already done so. Skype-to-Skype calls are free, while Skype calls to landlines cost about two cents (USD) per minute. Chinese cell phones can accept international calls, so it is also convenient to have friends and family call you (there is a surcharge for accepting international phone calls).
- ❖ Contact solution: You can buy this all over China, but make sure to bring enough for at least the first week.
- ❖ Leave empty space in your bag: You will likely return to your native country with more than you brought to China. Anticipate this and pack light. While in Guilin, you can also buy another suitcase or have things shipped home.

SKILLS TO WORK ON BEFORE ARRIVAL

- ❖ Chopstick skills: Very, very few restaurants in China have forks. Only Western-style restaurants will. All other restaurants use chopsticks. You can also always ask for a spoon (sháozi 勺子).

Immersion Program

- ❖ Squatting skills: All CLI apartments have Western toilets, but most of China has squat toilets. Don't forget to bring toilet paper with you whenever you go out (see "Chinese bathrooms" in the "What to Expect" section below).
- ❖ Open-mindedness: You will encounter minor and major differences in culture, food, social-interaction, and surroundings. Depending on the observer, these differences can be exciting, shocking, eye-opening, delightful, and even frustrating. In order to enjoy your time in China and gain as much as possible from the experience, always keep an open mind and be accepting of the many, many differences.

WHAT TO EXPECT

- ❖ Friendly, excited people: Guilin truly has a southern hospitality that you don't always find in the rest of China. Strangers are often enthusiastic to help you with your Chinese and it is common for CLI students to sit in a restaurant or store for hours learning with locals.
- ❖ Curiosity towards foreigners: Foreigners are a somewhat common site in major cities, but for many people in smaller cities, and especially in the countryside, you may be the first foreigner they have ever interacted with. Expect occasional staring and calls of "Hello!" The stares and greetings from strangers are innocent and not done in malice; people are truly curious, and once they discover you speak Chinese, you will have a new best friend.
- ❖ Big city and small town wrapped into one: CLI lies on the eastern edge of Guilin. You can walk downtown in about 45 minutes, ride a bike there in 15, or take a cab there in 8. Likewise, you are about the same distance to pure countryside.
- ❖ Surreal scenery: There is a famous expression known across China – 桂林山水甲天下 (Guilín shānshuǐ jiǎ tiān xià), which means "Guilin's scenery is the best under heaven." Guilin's beauty is so renowned that it is even on the back of the 20 RMB bill. You will immediately realize why Guilin is one of the premier destinations in China. You'll fully experience the natural beauty of Guilin in its countryside, especially near Yangshuo and the Longsheng rice terraces.
- ❖ Awesome biking: Major roads in Guilin have separate driving lanes, bus lanes, and bike lanes, and also have sidewalks. Almost everywhere in the city is accessible in under a 30 minute bike ride. The ride from GXNU to downtown is only 15 minutes by bike.
- ❖ Qigong, kungfu, and yoga: Some of the most entertaining 'performances' in Guilin are locals doing Taichi (tàijí) by the river with the sunrise each day and old ladies with boom boxes dancing the solo waltz, electric slide style, each night by the high arched bridge over Banyan Lake (róng hú). In addition, there are endless kungfu and yoga classes to attend.
- ❖ Daily rest time: There is a daily rest time from noon to 2:30pm that many Chinese people observe. Universities and most government offices close within this window, and it is therefore sometimes difficult to accomplish tasks requiring cooperation with locals during this time.

Immersion Program

- ❖ Low cost of living: One of the luxuries of Guilin is that you can live very comfortably on 500-1,000 USD a month (depending on your lifestyle). Many services that are very expensive in America are quite inexpensive in China; for example, massages ($8/hour), maid service ($2/hour), a personal cook ($6/meal), and taxi rides ($4 almost anywhere in town). In addition, clothes, food, and traveling are much less expensive.
- ❖ Upbeat nightlife: Bars in Guilin range from quiet cafés to all-night dance clubs. The two hippest bars in town frequented by younger Chinese patrons and foreigners alike are Muse and Cats & Rabbits (māotù). Joys is located downtown and mostly spins international pop, electronic, and hip-hop music, while Cats & Rabbits offers a more laid-back atmosphere and regularly plays lounge and punk music.
- ❖ Karaoke: Known as KTV, this is the preferred choice of entertainment for many Guilinese. At some point during your stay in Guilin, you will most likely end up in a KTV and have a mic handed to you. If you do not know how to sing the Carpenters “Yesterday Once More” or Celine Dion’s “My heart Will Go On,” you will soon.
- ❖ Delicious food: Though it’s likely not the Chinese food you are used to from Chinese restaurants in your home country, most will agree that Guilin cuisine is truly excellent. And if you’re ever craving some food from back home, Guilin has an excellent Western foods store and several Western-style restaurants.
- ❖ Traditional Tea Houses: Tea is an important part of Chinese culture and there is ceremony and ritual associated with the process of drinking it. Tea houses are a great place to go to study Chinese and meet friendly locals.
- ❖ Wonderful parks: Being a tourist town, Guilin has numerous parks scattered throughout the city. All parks feature pagodas resting atop karst mountains, great for midday studying or relaxing.
- ❖ People from all over the world: There is an excellent international community in Guilin, which includes people from the United States, England, Ireland, France, Germany, Spain, Holland, Poland, Switzerland, Russia, Australia, New Zealand, Mexico, Puerto Rico, Estonia, Nigeria, Algeria, Kyrgyzstan, Kazakhstan, Vietnam, Indonesia, Thailand, Malaysia, Korea, Japan, and more. That being said, Guilin is a great place to avoid all foreign contact if so desired.
- ❖ Haggling/special foreigner prices: Since parts of China heavily cater to tourism and have countless visitors each year, vendors and cab drivers sometimes try to take advantage of foreigners by overcharging them for items and services. However, once they hear that you speak even the most basic Chinese, they will be much more willing to negotiate with you and will accordingly lower their prices. Almost all goods and services can be bargained for. In most bustling markets, expect to pay 25-30% less than the asking price for the majority of items, and in more touristy areas, the price could drop well over half.

Immersion Program

- ❖ The Great Firewall: In an effort to “harmonize” the Internet and prevent anti-government activity, the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) blocks access to numerous Web sites. Facebook, YouTube, Blogspot, Twitter, and other social networking/blogging sites are among those that you cannot access without a VPN. Additionally, major social and political advocacy sites, such as Human Rights Watch and Amnesty International, are blocked. Many foreigners and locals use a VPN to get around the firewall. Some, such as www.torproject.org, can be downloaded for free, but these are not as reliable as paid networks. Astrill (www.astrill.com) offers an excellent VPN for 8.33 USD per month with a year subscription, or 15.90 USD per month if you sign up for a month-to-month subscription (as of February 2018), securing your privacy and providing you with (relatively) uninterrupted Internet access. Please note that, even when using Astrill, almost all foreign websites run slower in China than they do in the West.
- ❖ A lack of violence: Your biggest threat in China is someone coyly trying to steal your bike or your wallet, and thieves quickly submit when caught. Even so, make sure to lock up your bicycle and keep your bag zipped. Fighting almost never happens in China, especially Guilin. Many people speak loudly, and it may appear as if someone is angry when (s)he is merely trying to express a point.

Note: One of the WORST things you can do in China is to get in a fight. If you find yourself in a tense situation, just walk away or conclude any argument diplomatically. Chinese people will not throw the first punch, but if they see one of their countrymen fighting with a foreigner, they will join in and you will quickly find yourself outnumbered.
- ❖ Firecrackers and fireworks: Days are frequently punctuated by the sparkle, boom, pop, and thump of firecrackers and fireworks. Major events such as holidays, weddings, and business openings are almost always marked by the ritual of lighting firecrackers. The loud sound is used to ward off evil spirits and thus bless important events with a fresh start.
- ❖ Incredible language environment: Wherever you go in Guilin, you will find yourself in an amazing language environment. Unlike Beijing and Shanghai, English is seldom heard in Guilin. Chinese is even used as the medium of communication between many foreigners. Guilin is a fantastic place to call home and offers the best of both the countryside and a small city to create an amazing language-learning environment.

SUGGESTED BOOKS AND MOVIES (ALL QUOTATIONS FROM AMAZON.COM)

Suggested Reading List

- ❖ River Town (c. 2006) by Peter Hessler: In 1996, 26-year-old Peter Hessler arrived in Fuling, a town on China's Yangtze River, to begin a two-year Peace Corps stint as a teacher at the local college. Along with fellow teacher Adam Meier, the two are the first foreigners to be in this part of the Sichuan province for 50 years. Expecting a calm couple of years, Hessler at first does not realize the social, cultural, and personal implications of being thrust into such a radically different society. In River Town: Two Years on the Yangtze, Hessler tells of his experience with the citizens of Fuling, the political and historical climate, and the feel of the city itself.”

Immersion Program

- ❖ Iron and Silk (c. 1987) by Mark Salzman: Salzman captures post-cultural revolution China through his adventures as a young American English teacher in China and his shifu-tudi (master-student) relationship with China's foremost martial arts teacher.
- ❖ China Shakes the World (c. 2007) by James Kynge: A former bureau chief of the Financial Times in Beijing, Kynge demonstrates how China's thirst for jobs, raw materials, energy, and new markets—and its export of goods, workers, and investments—will dramatically reshape world trade and politics. China's appetite, though unpremeditated and inarticulate, has become a source of major change in the world. Not all is rosy, however, because China has serious problems with its environmental resources, severe pollution, and institutionalized corruption within the government, the legal system, the police force, and the media. Kynge sheds light on each of these topics and answers many questions critical to understanding 21st century China.
- ❖ China Wakes: The Struggle for the Soul of a Rising Power (c. 1995) by Nicholas Kristof and Sheryl WuDunn: Published in 1995, the husband-and-wife team of Kristof and WuDunn, whose reporting of the Tiananmen Square massacre for the New York Times earned them a Pulitzer prize, range from Beijing to the Tibetan highlands in their illuminating look at the changes and contradictions unfolding within Chinese society.
- ❖ On China (c. 2011) by Henry Kissinger: In this sweeping and insightful history, Henry Kissinger turns for the first time at book-length to a country he has known intimately for decades, and whose modern relations with the West he helped shape. Drawing on historical records as well as his conversations with Chinese leaders over the past forty years, Kissinger examines how China has approached diplomacy, strategy, and negotiation throughout its history, and reflects on the consequences for the global balance of power in the 21st century.
- ❖ Business Leadership in China (c. 2011) by Frank T. Gallo: This book is ideal for any international manager who wants to better understand how to blend the best practices of Western leadership with traditional Chinese wisdom. The content comes from a combination of English and Chinese literature, interviews with practicing executives in China as well as the author's own experience as a leader in China.

Suggested Movie List

- ❖ China: A Century of Revolution: China: A Century of Revolution is a six-hour tour de force journey through the country's most tumultuous period. China in Revolution charts the pivotal years from the birth of the new republic to the establishment of the PRC, through foreign invasions, civil war and a bloody battle for power between Mao Zedong and Chiang Kai-shek.
- ❖ The Passion of Mao: An excellent documentary. The director brings a tremendous amount of rich primary source material to the screen with an original and entertaining perspective, uncovering the relationship between Mao's political and policy achievements with Mao's colorful life story, marked by some of his comically bizarre traits.

- ❖ Young & Restless in China: A riveting and poignant documentary, Young & Restless in China tracks the lives of nine ambitious young Chinese professionals who are struggling to make it in this very tumultuous and rapidly changing society, as it prepares to host the 2008 Beijing Olympics.
- ❖ Any and all films by director Zhang Yimou, especially To Live, Hero, House of Flying Daggers, The Story of QiuJu, The Curse of the Golden Flower and Raise the Red Lantern. Zhang Yimou is well-known as the director of the 2008 Beijing Olympics Opening Ceremony.
- ❖ PBS's Around the Globe: China offers an incredible array of free online learning resources to help bring you up to speed on many aspects of China. Learn about China's traditional concept of the Mandate of Heaven, understand the basics of Confucianism, explore the influence of Buddhism in China, and much more. To access this resource, simply search "pbs around the globe china" in Google.
